Thought He Wanted to Speak.

Sir Julian Pauncefote is fond of the theatre, and his European method of surveying an audience through an opera-glass has startled the Washingtonians. At the end of each act he walks to the front of his box and looks carefully over the house to see what friends he has in the house to see what friends ne has in the auditorium. When he first did this the audience thought he was going to make a speech, but his habit is now so well known that it attracts fittle atten-tion. Sir Julian is rapidly becoming pop-ular at the capital, and an invitation to is house is considered a valuable social attention.
